HEALTH BLURBS - JUMP STARTING YOUR CAR

As the weather grows colder, a set of jumper cables becomes standard equipment in the trunk of most cars. Jump-starting the car - using booster cables to siphon an electrical current from a working battery to a dead one - is part of the winter routine, and most people don't think twice before they connect cables to their battery. But each year 25,000 people injure their eyes while jump-starting their cars. The electrical current created when you recharge the battery produces hydrogen gas - a highly explosive and easily ignited substance. Even though the battery may be sealed, gases can escape through its vents. If an explosion occurs, the sulfuric acid contained in the battery could splash all over you, burning you badly.

Improperly jump-starting your car could be disastrous - you could injure yourself or damage your car. To jump-start safely, follow these rules from the National Society to Prevent Blindness:

1. Make sure both batteries have the same voltage. Most cars have 12-volt batteries, but consult your owner's manual.
2. Keep flames and cigarettes away from the battery.
3. Connect the cables before starting either car.
4. First connect positive post to positive post, then connect the negative post of the good battery to the engine block of the stalled car, not to its negative post. Choose a spot on the engine block as far away from the battery as possible; that way you have less chance of igniting the escaping gas.
5. Don't lean over the engine during jump-starting.
6. For added protection, wear goggles or safety glasses.

To get a sticker for your glove compartment illustrating the correct way to jump-start, send 25¢ and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: The National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016.

HEALTH OFFICE QUESTIONNAIRES' COMPUTER PRINT-OUTS can be picked up in the Health Office (Room #T651). If you have completed the Health Office questionnaire and not received your computer print-out yet, check with the Health Office.

HEALTH OFFICE- Tower, 6th floor, has a nurse practitioner available by beeper at all times during the day for emergencies. Office hours are 9:30am-11:30am, and 1 - 3:30pm, Monday-Friday. Meetings, etc, may affect daily schedules, so phone ahead, if possible (Ext.364).

Physician's hours are 1pm-4pm every Wednesday. Appointments are usually necessary, although walk-ins are seen as time allows.
